Guidance System in France

OVERVIEW

The French system is characterized by a great diversity of information and guidance services. These services have been designed, in view of the different target groups (pupils, adults, unemployed, people with disabilities...), the type of services (individual counselling, skills assessment, training, information...), practitioner qualifications (psychologists, counsellors, teachers, social workers...), the status of facilities (public, private, professional, commercial....) and financing (state, local authority, users, companies...).

In order to organize these services, the public regional guidance service (le service public régional de l'orientation SPRO) was established by a recent law.

Guidance is offered both at national and regional level. At national level, the state is dealing with guidance policy regarding pupils and students at schools and universities. At regional level, the regions coordinate actions of other guidance institutions, the professional development (conseil en évolution professionnelle), and the accreditation of prior learning (validation des acquis d'expérience).

SERVICES AND PRACTICE

Guidance services for young people:

There is no guidance provision in primary schools. Around 400 guidance services called "Centre d'information et d'orientation (CIO)", depending on the Ministry of Education, are directed towards post-primary schools, higher and further education institutions.

The Ministry of Education is also in charge of the national information provider "Office national d'information sur les enseignements et les professions (ONISEP)" and of the "Mission de lutte contre le décrochage scolaire (MLDS)" which is an entity focusing on school drop outs. E-guidance service is provided by ONISEP.

The local offices "Missions Locales (ML)", target youngsters (16-25 years) with social and work integration difficulties. There are also more and more private guidance centres and private press agencies in the field of information and guidance, such as L'Etudiant, Studyrama targeting pupils and students.

Guidance services for students:

At each university, there is a guidance service available to students called SCUIOP "Service Commun Universitaire d'Information et d'Orientation et d'Insertion Professionnelle". The activities of the individual SCUIO differ, but they all comprise: information and counselling for students, organization of fairs and open days, production of information material, information to upper secondary school students, workshops on job seeking and occupational integration etc. Students, who are enrolled in higher education but not at a university can use the services of the CIOs.

Guidance services for adults:

The agencies of the Ministry of Employment are in charge of information and guidance for job seeking adults who would like to retrain or change their career or develop additional skills. These services are mostly provided by the staff of the national employment agencies ("Pôle Emploi"). Pôle
